

APR 12 1965

CPYRIGHT

Nominated CIA Chief

CHICAGO Adm. William F. Raborn Jr., known as father of the Navy's Polaris missile, has been nominated by President Johnson to succeed John A. McCone as director of the Central Intelligence Agency. McCone, 63, a Republican appointed to the post by the late President Kennedy, had wanted to retire from the CIA post for some time.